

GLASSDOOR EMPLOYEE REVIEWS

Exploratory Data Analysis

By Ali Fuad

PROBLEM STATEMENT

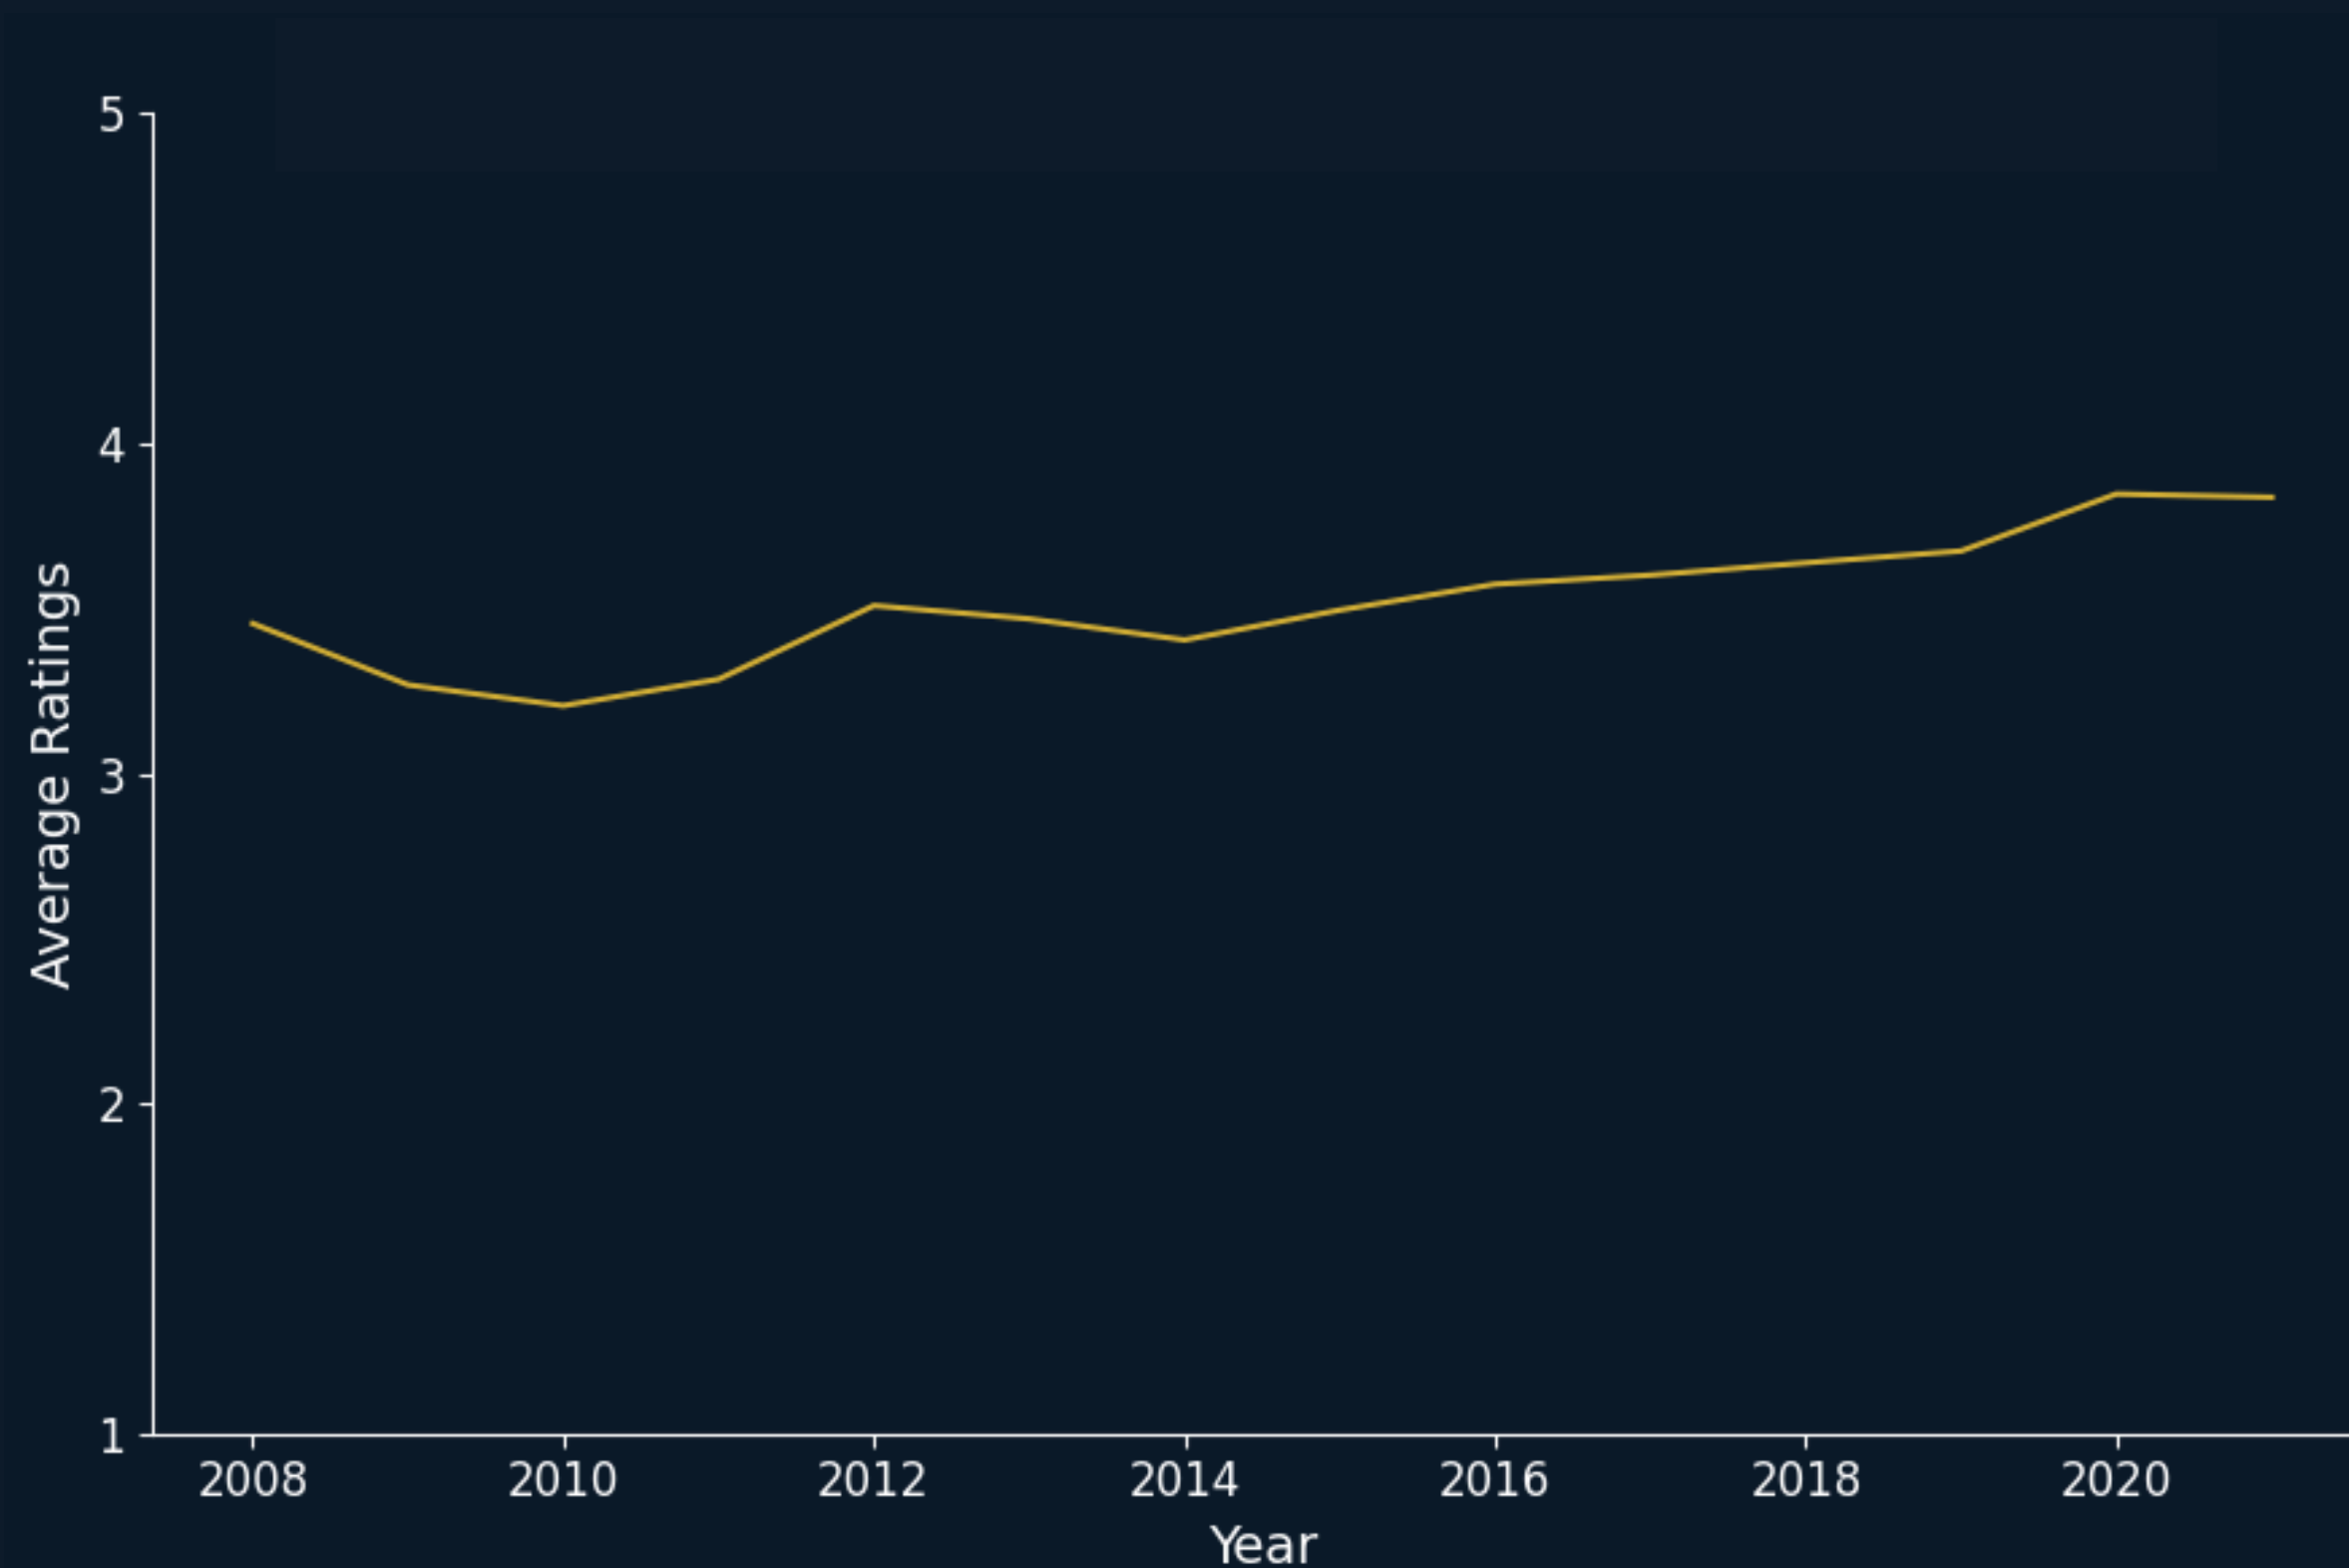

How do employees perceive their workplaces, and what factors most strongly influence overall satisfaction?

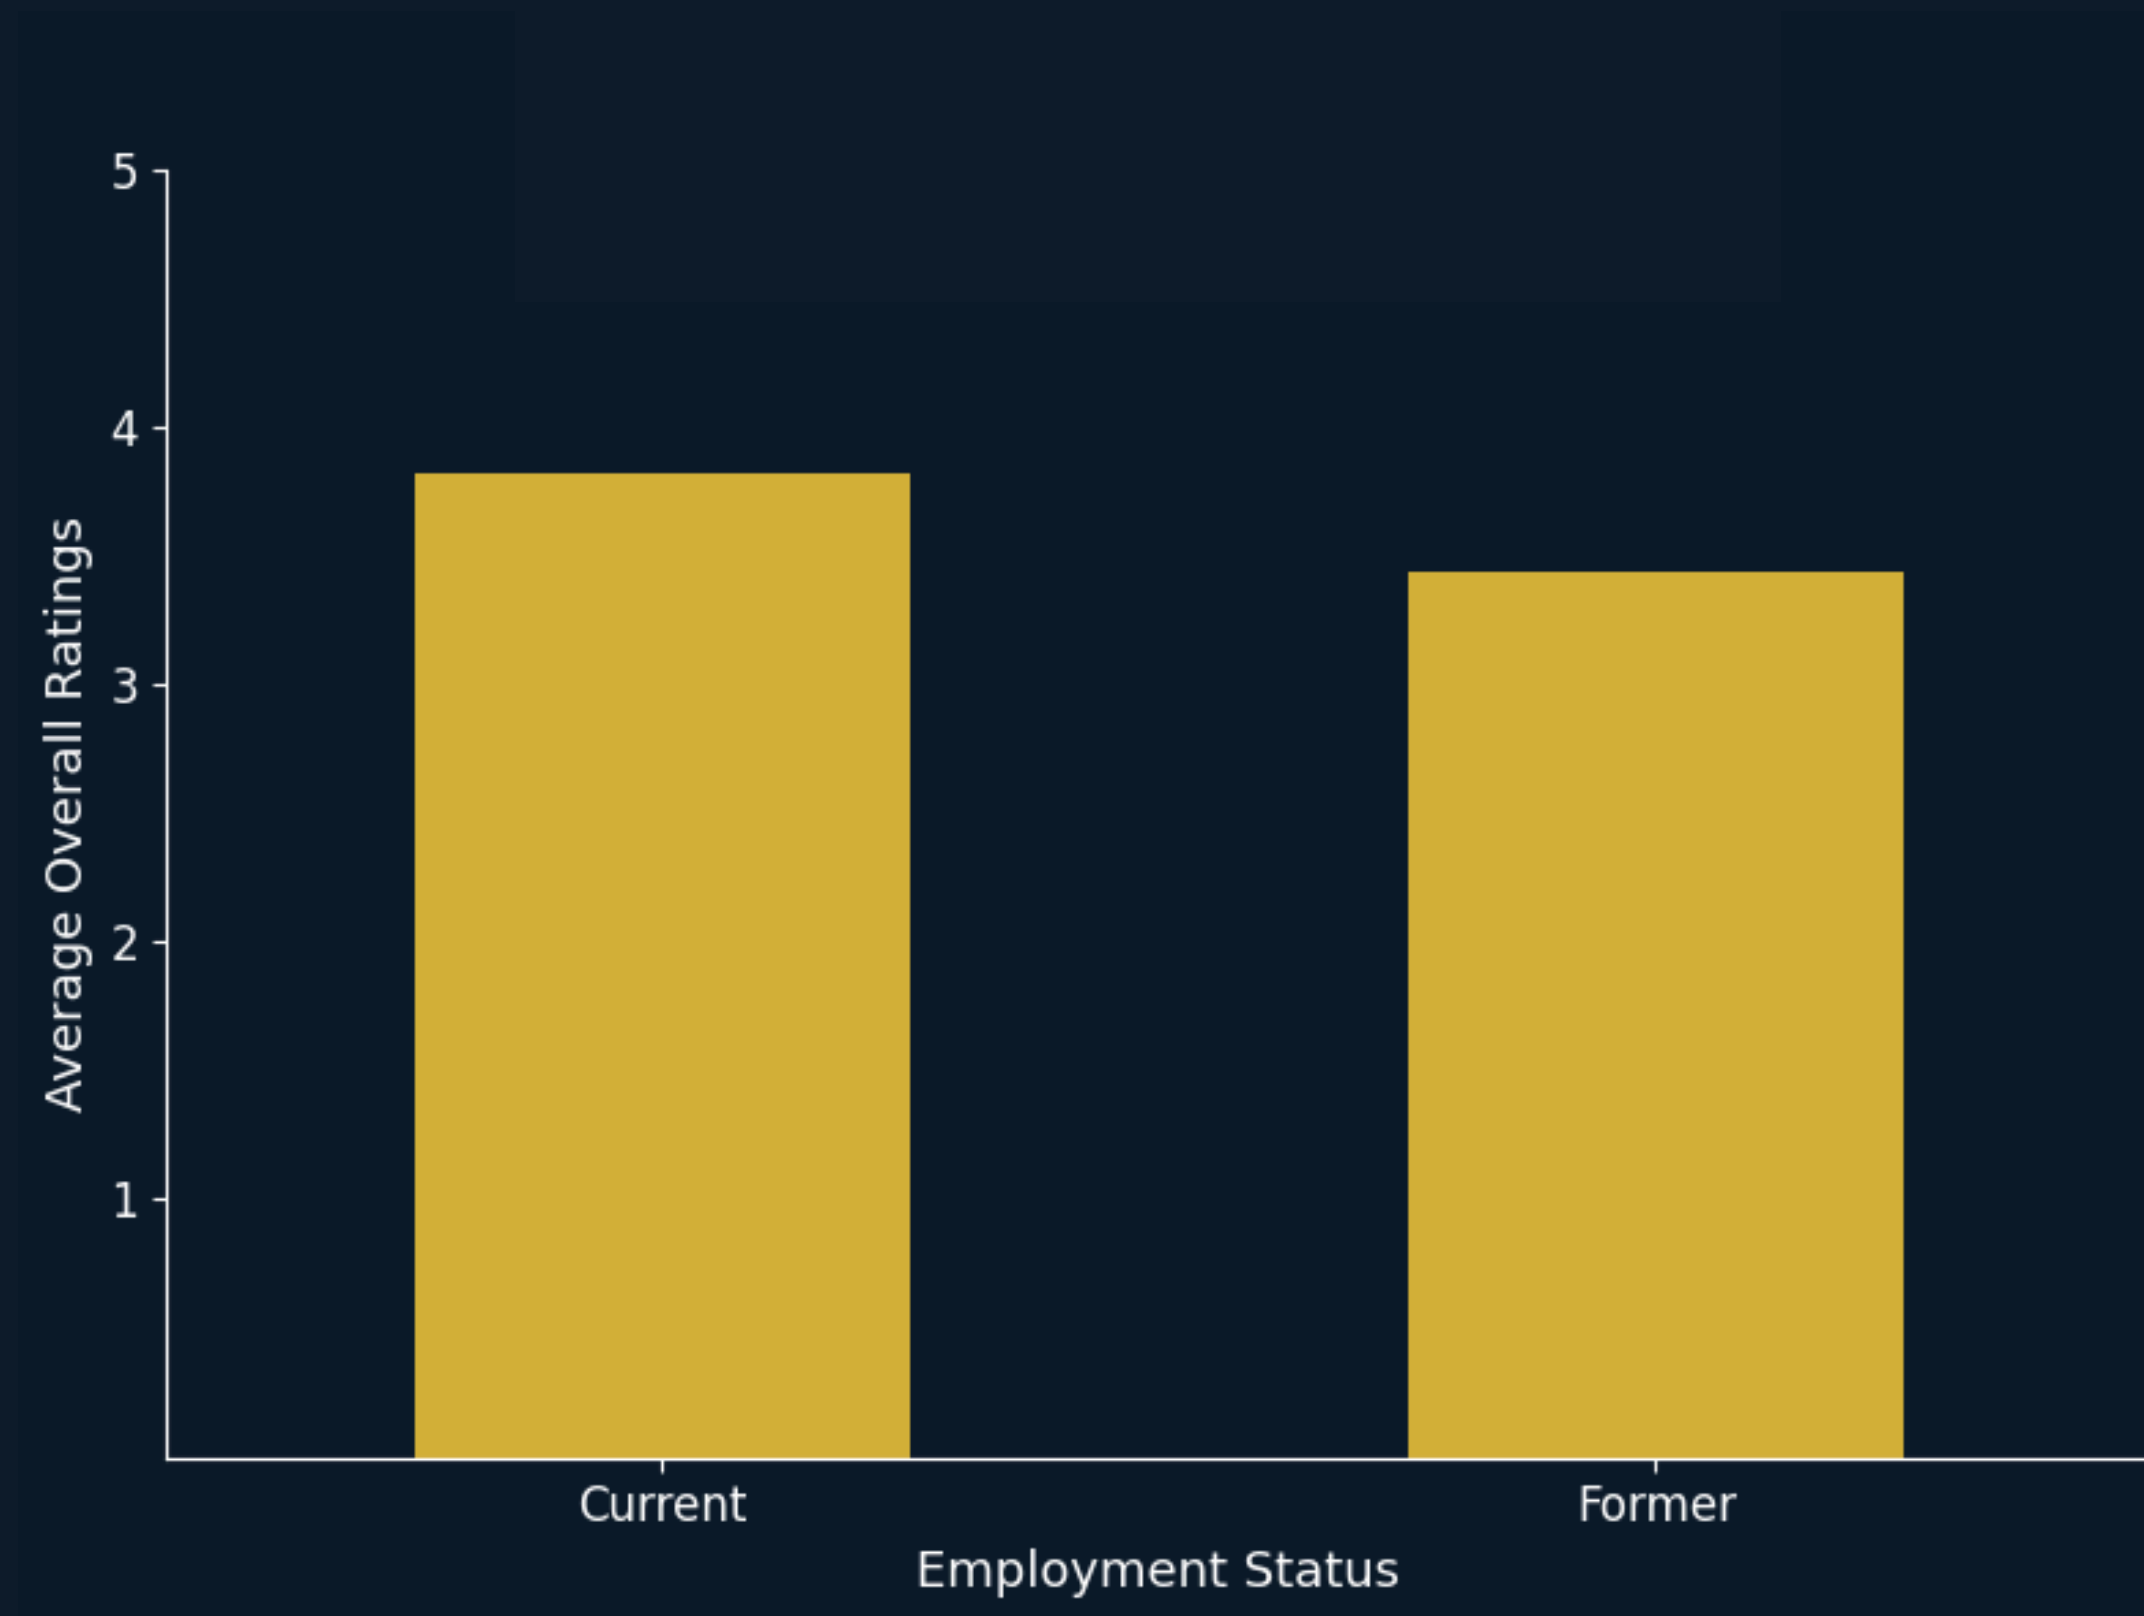

OBJECTIVES

- Examine trends in the average overall ratings across the years.
- Compare overall ratings between current and former employees.
- Use text analysis to identify recurring themes in employee reported pros and cons.
- To compare recommendation percentages among the top 10 most reviewed companies.

CONCLUSION

- Overall workplace satisfaction is moderately positive.
- Current employees report slightly higher satisfaction than former employees, though differences are not substantial.
- Key strengths: Good pay & flexibility.
- Main concerns: Leadership & workload.

LIMITATIONS

- The dataset includes over 400 companies across multiple industries, but industry classification is not provided, limiting industry-level comparisons.
- Online reviews may be influenced by company driven encouragement to leave positive feedback.
- The “No opinion” category may include neutral or disengaged employees, but its interpretation may vary between reviewers.

RECOMMENDATIONS

- Organizations should focus on strengthening leadership communication, and management practices.
- Evaluate workload distribution and work hour expectations.
- Continue investing in workplace culture, flexibility, and team dynamics.

A low-angle, upward-looking shot of several modern skyscrapers with glass facades. The buildings are dark and silhouetted against a bright blue sky with scattered white clouds. The perspective creates a sense of height and grandeur.
